

Setting the Standard of Professionalism for Building Envelope Consultants

RCI is a professional association of building envelope consultants who specialize in the design, investigation, repair, and management of roofing, exterior wall, and waterproofing systems. At over 2,500 members strong, the association's members can be found throughout the United States and Canada.

RCI Professional members operate without conflict of interest and are not connected with any manufacturer or product. They strive to be unbiased and follow an established code of ethics. They maintain knowledge of the latest industry technologies and are committed to annual requirements for continuing education.

Professional development opportunities include educational seminars, networking opportunities, informative publications and more. RCI registration programs distinguish consultants with the highest proven standards of education, experience, and ethical behavior.
