RCI 2014 Document Competition Winners Recognized

Raleigh, NC -- RCI, Inc., recognized the winners of its 2014 Document Competition on March 23, at its annual awards luncheon during the 29th RCI International Convention and Trade Show in Anaheim, CA.

The RCI Document Competition is an annual event organized to recognize members’ excellence in roofing, waterproofing, and exterior wall construction project documentation. All entries were on display at the RCI International Trade Show.

The following individuals received first-place honors:

For excellence in the Report writing category, Dennis Spina, RRC, AIA, for his entry on the Washington Arms, Syracuse University, Syracuse, NY.

For excellence in the Small Roofing/Waterproofing/Exterior Wall Project Documents category for construction valued less than $750,000, Dennis Spina, RRC, AIA, for his entry on Washington Arms, Syracuse University, Syracuse, NY.

For excellence in the Large Roofing/Waterproofing/Exterior Wall Project Documents category for construction valued greater than $750,000, Marcus Dell, PEng, for his entry on the Crystallis High-rise, Vancouver, BC.

All winning entries will be recognized in the July issue of Interface, RCI’s monthly technical journal. A summary of the competition’s first-, second-, and third-place winners from each category will be featured.

First, second, and third place awards include:

1st Place – Plaque in the name of the entrant and $1,000 in “RCI Dollars” for any RCI or RCI Foundation products
2nd Place – Plaque in the name of the entrant and $500 in “RCI Dollars” for any RCI or RCI Foundation products
